

PETER D. RAYMOND
Capital Projects & Infrastructure
Global Leader

Peter Raymond serves as Global Leader of PwC's Capital Projects & Infrastructure (CP&I) Practice. The CP&I Practice advises public and private sector clients on managing the effective development, financing and delivery of large scale capital projects and infrastructure programs.

Clients include, among others, public and private sector transportation, energy, health care, technology/telecommunications, water, and manufacturing companies; engineering and construction companies; infrastructure investors, developers and insurers; private equity and sovereign wealth funds; governments and international development organizations.

CP&I is comprised of more than 1000 partners and staff globally, advising clients on more than $100 billion in capital investment annually in the US, Europe, Africa, Asia, Latin America and the Middle East. Assignments range from market entry and expansion strategies to the structuring of multi-billion dollar financings to the delivery of individual capital programs ranging from under $1 billion to tens of billions of dollars. The team combines tax, accounting, deals, strategy and project delivery capabilities to assist clients in making and executing effective decisions on the markets, projects and means of delivery for capital investments globally.

Prior to PwC, Mr. Raymond was a partner at Arthur Andersen where he was responsible for privatization and project finance work in the emerging markets. During the Asian financial crisis, Mr. Raymond lived and worked in Asia, based in Thailand, and advised on the financial sector restructuring in Thailand, Indonesia, Malaysia and other countries in the region. Mr. Raymond also served as lead advisor to the Thai government on the privatization and restructuring of government enterprises and infrastructure holdings including telco, water, power and transportation assets. In the early 1990s, Mr. Raymond lived and worked in Central and Eastern Europe where he advised on a wide range of economic restructuring, privatization and direct investment programs for public and private sector clients.

Mr. Raymond, a PwC principal based in McLean, VA, has more than 25 years experience in the US and internationally advising public and private sector clients on infrastructure development, investment strategies, emerging markets and on national level financial and economic restructuring programs. He has worked in more than 30 countries around the world and lived in Europe, Asia and the Americas. He was recognized as a Top 25 Consultant by Consulting Magazine for his work during the US financial crisis. Mr. Raymond holds degrees from Georgetown University in Washington, DC and Union College in Schenectady, New York.