

Membership Benefits

The ACCJ is a non-profit member organization run by and for its members. Membership is open to individuals and companies of all nationalities. For almost 70 years, the ACCJ has been providing thousands of businesspeople the opportunity to network, seek and disperse information, and provide a valuable avenue for advocacy.

Networking

As the premier foreign business organization in Japan, the ACCJ brings together approximately 3,500 professionals from over 1,000 globally-minded companies representing more than 40 countries. About 500 events annually – including speaker programs, networking events, conferences, and working meetings – give members ample opportunities to network and learn. Over 60 active committees offer energetic forums for exchanging information and real-world strategies.

Information

The ACCJ is the go-to source for information amongst the business organizations in Japan, especially for American companies or those doing business with the U.S. World-class speakers from business and government regularly present on their topics of expertise. Through its close relationship with the Japanese and U.S. governments, the ACCJ is a source for the most up-to-date information that is critical for doing business in the region.

Advocacy

A high-profile participant in the debates that shape bilateral policy, the ACCJ continuously works with its partners in the U.S. and Japanese governments to expand foreign direct investment and market access in Japan, to promote policies that would strengthen and make the Japanese economy more efficient, and to fully implement existing trade agreements between the United States and Japan.
