The ACCJ Re-elects Michael J. Alfant to Lead the Chamber in 2012

November 29, 2011— The American Chamber of Commerce in Japan (ACCJ) announced today that Michael J. Alfant has been re-elected to lead the Chamber as President in 2012.

"I am truly honored to be re-elected President of the ACCJ. I offer my congratulations to those who were elected to serve the Chamber with me, and look forward to working diligently with them to execute the Chamber's mission to further the development of commerce between the U.S. and Japan, promote the interests of U.S. companies and our members, and improve the overall international business environment," said Alfant.

"It has been a challenging year for Japan, as the nation suffered a tragedy of unimaginable proportions in the wake of the March 11 disasters. The events had a profound impact on all of us, as many of our companies have been in this country for decades and many call Japan 'home.' As an integral part of the local community, we will remain fully engaged in all aspects of our professional and personal activities through the years to come."

Alfant continued, "In the coming year, I am looking forward to our hosting the 2012 APCAC (Asia Pacific Council of American Chambers of Commerce) U.S.-Asia Business Summit. It will be the first time Japan hosts the APCAC Summit in over two decades. We are excited to bring so many business and government leaders to Tokyo next March 1 and 2, to demonstrate to them first-hand that Japan remains one of the world's strongest, most vibrant economies and is "open for business."
